

Guy Banister Quits FBI 'To Make Some Money'

Guy Banister, head of the Chicago office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation since February, announced his retirement "because I need to go out and make some money."

Banister, 53, has been in the FBI 20 years. He said he had no immediate plans, except to begin hunting a job.

His resignation came as a surprise to his associates.

He will be succeeded by Don S. Hostetter, 47, also a 20-year FBI veteran, who has been agent-in-charge of the Newark (N.J.) office since February, 1953.

Banister joined the FBI on

Nov. 5, 1934, after serving almost five years on the police force at Monroe, La. He headed FBI offices in Buffalo, Mont., Oklahoma City and Minneapolis before he was assigned to Chicago.

He is married and lives at 427 S. Scoville, Oak Park. A daughter, Mary Jane, 15, is a pupil in Oak Park High School.